

ABSTRACT

1 A security system for a computer system provides one or more security 2 domains. Access to assets registered to the security system is controlled by 3 rights and privileges. Rights are derived from roles, and each user is assigned 4 one or more roles. Privileges are attached to assets, and an appropriate 5 combination of rights and privileges is required before a user is granted the 6 specified type of access to the asset.

Approved for Release